DEATH OF A TAXI DRIVER

XLIBRIS. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 238 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.6in. A fascinating journey into inner space, written with romanticism unique to the authors Bengali culture, Mohammed Helals Death of a Taxi Driver is an intense and exciting tragedy of Everyman on the streets of Toronto. Amidst the riches of Canadas premiere city, an immigrant taxi driver pursues a proletarian destiny he has committed a crime and has undergone a harrowing time through the slow and onerous courts. (It will be noted here that the author has given express consent for this Press Releases revision, agreeing to the items written about the city of Toronto, which is the setting for his fiction. Ed.) Meantime he roams free and like the proverbial Dutchman, roams Torontos streets in endless circles, ruminating on his fate and his miseries (one of which is a love triangle involving him, his wife, and another man), until he decides to break the mirror of fate and end his life and with it, the misery and mental suffering that he carried around for a long time. Mohammed Helals viewpoint is multicultural and a positive net effect is the general sense of one being transported or connected to many other times and places while the story describes modern scenes in its here and now. Helal does a literary gamble in narrating a story set in a modern Western city with the clear, descriptive rococo of classical Persian storytelling and the flavors of his native Bangladesh. He updates these and makes an interesting case for non-Western authors to be accepted as equals in Western literature. Why, one asks, has the author gambled thus The answer is, because he has the vision and talent to see it through. The many contrasts thus made, though, supports the taxi drivers alienation whilst...
